

TEST YOUR KNOWLEDGE

March/April 2009

1. Mating rabbits of the same breed, but not related, is using what type of breeding program?
2. What two breeds within the Compact Type group are to be posed lightly on the forefeet?
3. An intact male rabbit is called what?
4. This breed of cavy allows points for the coat density, length, resiliency and kink?
5. The incisor teeth will grow a range of how many inches per month?
6. On what part of a rabbit would you find shadow bars?
7. When placing a rabbit in a cage, should you do so head first or tail end first?
8. Dashing around the cage and thumping its hind feet is a rabbit's response to what?
9. What is the condition called when a rabbit's incisor teeth meet directly without any overlap?
10. What is the most critical nutrient in a rabbit's diet?
11. Using 1 part of this liquid to 5 parts of water is an excellent solution for sanitizing nest boxes?
12. A rabbit coat that is missing guard hairs exposing the undercoat is called what?
13. Without exception, all rabbits over 8 months of age art in what show class?
14. On what cavy breeds will you find a mustache?
15. What is the term for the normal activity where a rabbit eats their soft or night feces?

(answers available on our website: www.msrb.net)

March April 2009 - Test Your Knowledge – Answers

1. Outcrossing
2. Netherland Dwarf - Holland Lop
3. Buck
4. Teddy
5. $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ inch
6. Front or hind feet
7. Tail end first
8. Fear
9. Butting
10. Water
11. Bleach
12. Broken coat
13. Senior
14. Abyssinian or Abyssinian Satin
15. Coprophagy

* Please note – questions are taken from the following references:
ARBA Standard of Perfection, ARBA Official Guidebook & Rabbit Production