

TEST YOUR KNOWLEDGE ?

1. What is the most important factor when judging a meat pen?
2. What breed having a full arched type is to be posed and not allowed to move naturally on the table?
3. Cavies do not store this vitamin so it must be included in their feed?
4. An intact male rabbit is called what?
5. What is the name for the small residual incisors located behind the normal to incisors?
6. The coat of this breed of rabbit is to remain upright when stroked from the rump to the head.
7. This loose fold of skin hangs from the throat of some does?
8. During a postmortem exam, a normal rabbit's lung color should be what?
9. A rabbit that has orchitis, has an infection of what organ?
10. A rabbit has what percent of its genes in common with the sire?
11. Giving nursing kits a special feed that only they have access to is called?
12. What type of breeding program is useful in screening carriers of undesirable traits?
13. A rabbit having pododermatitis would be suffering from what?
14. High levels of this in your rabbitry will cause damage to the cells in the nasal passages?
15. This type of nest box allows inspection of the kits without opening the cage door and disturbing the doe.

(answers available after April 1st on our website: www.msrb.net)

* Please note – questions are taken from the following references:
ARBA Standard of Perfection, ARBA Guidebook & Rabbit Production

Test Your Knowledge Answers
March/April 2006 issue

1. Meat Type
2. Britannia Petite
3. Vitamin C
4. Buck
5. Peg teeth
6. Silver Fox
7. Dewlap
8. Pink
9. Testicles
10. 50%
11. Creep feeding
12. In-Breeding
13. Sore Hocks
14. Ammonia
15. Front Loading